"DRUMMER EVANGELIST" WHO

Tent Meeting in Rushville Last
Summer, Subject of Probe.*WIFE FOUND IN COVINGTON*Plight of Spouse, Who Was Mis-
treated by "Evangelist" Here,
Arouses Cincinnati Officials.*HIS ACTIONS HERE RECALLED*Neighbors Aroused at Time by Merciless Manner in Which he Beat Frail Wife.

The "Rev." S. J. Winchester, who posed as "The Drummer Evangelist" while he was here for more than two months last summer, who wore a uniform and an inscription on his cap, and who, neighbors say, often beat his frail wife into insensibility, is the subject of a careful and cautious investigation in Cincinnati which may be the result of his downfall.

The investigation was started by the Rev. Robert Watson, pastor of the Cincinnati Presbyterian Church of the Covenant and President of the Cincinnati Vigilance Society.

"The American and International Association for the Prevention of White Slave Traffic" was founded in the fall of 1911 by "Colonel" S. Winchester, President, but has been under the direct management of his father, "Rev." S. J. Winchester, formerly a chef in a Cincinnati cafe.

It is "Rev." Winchester against whom the investigation is directed, and in whom Rushville people are interested. "Rev." Winchester is said to have married four times. His matrimonial troubles have been aired repeatedly in Cincinnati courts, and his name was in the spotlight about six years ago, in connection with that of Miss Edna Hubbard, then 16 years of age.

It is because of the present misery of this girl, who is now Mrs. Winchester, and her three little children, whose ages range between one and five years, that the investigation into the "Anti-White Slave Society," and in particular into the personal affairs of "Rev." Winchester, were brought to the attention of Cincinnati city officials.

Last Thursday morning Mrs. Winchester, who is now about 23 years old, was found sobbing on a street in Covington, Ky., by a policeman. The woman told the officer that she had no money to care for herself or her three little ones and that her husband had left the city. The policeman referred Mrs. Winchester to Miss Emma Mae Talmage, Superintendent of the Hope Mission of Cincinnati. Miss Talmage housed the woman and her youngest child in that institution and conveyed the other two children to another mission.

"What this unfortunate young woman has told me is a story so horrible that it surpasses all I have heard in my long and extensive experience in mission work," said Miss Talmage.

"What Mrs. Winchester has told me was in confidence, and I shall not reveal it until the proper time comes. However, this much is certain: This investigation will result in a revelation such as has never been heard before. Above all, something must be done immediately for the care of this woman and children. Mrs. Winchester is near a physical breakdown.

Miss Talmage also said that she knew "Wife No. 2" of "Rev." Winchester, but refused to reveal the name. She said the woman is living in Cincinnati, and has a little boy, the son of "Rev." Winchester, and that the latter had frequent legal troubles because of failure to pay alimony for the support of the boy.

People in the west part of the city still mention the name of the "Rev." Winchester with disdain, a snarl or a sneer. He was probably the most despised and rejected man who ever lived in that community. Winchester had what he chose to call a "Gospel" tent in which he preached. He and his wife and three children lived in a smaller tent nearby. The two tents were located in a vacant lot between Hannah and Spencer streets, and about midway between Second and Third streets.

People living in that community were sure that Winchester beat his wife unmercifully. But he had her so much under his control and so completely covered that any interference on the part of neighbors or the police was always resented by her.

A woman living in the community where Winchester was located during his stay here said this morning that she and others in the neighborhood had heard the piercing screams of Mrs. Winchester at late hours during the night when Winchester evidently believed everyone was in bed. Many people were awakened night after night by the usual practice of Winchester's—that of beating his wife.

Neighbors often talked of taking the law into their own hands and giving Winchester the kind of a beating he administered to his wife nightly. The police were notified many times about Winchester's actions. They were loathe to believe such things when the man posed as a "reverend" and a very good man.

Finally one day the police received a very insistent call to come to the "Gospel" tent. Chief McAllister responded. He walked into the tent unannounced. Winchester was singing, and reading from the Bible, and Mrs. Winchester was lying on a couch. They both denied that there was any difficulty between them. The children were questioned, but they, too, were evidently afraid, on account of their father's threats, to tell the truth.

Winchester came here the week of June 17, last, and departed Thursday, August 26, taking both tents and all his belongings with him. He "milked" the local press for all the space he could get boosting his so-called "Gospel" meetings. He announced many converts, and frequently had special sermons for women only. One special sermon was on the topic, "Social Purity and the White Slave Traffic," preached Tuesday, July 16.

Mrs. Winchester was taken from the tent here Saturday, August 27. She told people in that neighborhood that her health had failed and that she was on the way to her mother's home at Winchester, Ind.

A dispatch from Winchester tells of the sordid life of Winchester before he came here, and how he enticed his girl-wife to marry him when she was but a girl of sixteen years and about to graduate from high school.

Winchester first went to Randolph county ten years ago from Cincinnati. He acted as an evangelist, and located his tent at Lynn, a small town. He had held meetings there but a short time until he became acquainted with Miss Edna Hubbard, 16 years old, known as one of the most beautiful young women in the country. She resided at Lynn, and was popular in society.

At the time Winchester was said to have had a wife living in Cincinnati.

Mrs. Mary Hubbard is said to have furnished him money with which to

Margaret Dunwoody.*IS WARD OF JUVENILE COURT

Harry Galliger of Indianapolis was arraigned before Mayor Black this afternoon and pleaded not guilty to a charge of associating with Margaret Dunwoody, a fifteen-year-old girl, reputed to be of immoral character. Galliger's case was set down for trial tomorrow afternoon and he went back to jail, being unable to secure bond. Galliger was arrested late last night near the Havens school building in Third street by policeman Wolter. He was accompanied by the Dunwoody girl and both were taken to jail. Galliger appeared at a local theater last night with some feature pictures.

The Dunwoody girl is a ward of the juvenile court, and she will more than likely be sent to Clermont, the Indiana Girls' School. She has been in numerous escapades, and recently was before the juvenile judge in connection with the Weevie case.

A man giving his name as George Ellis pleaded not guilty to a public intoxication charge and the trial set for tomorrow. Ellis was found along the C. H. & D. railroad east of the city yesterday afternoon and placed in jail. He stated his home was in Chicago and that he was on his way to Dayton.

Beaver, Tells Practically Same Story as Others.*ENGINEER IN C. H. & D. WRECK*Coroner Says Most of Crew Seemed to Have Share in Carelessness
of Night.

The testimony of Willis York, brother of Mrs. U. G. Beaver of this city and engineer on the freight into which the fast passenger crashed in the C. H. & D. Irvington wreck last Wednesday morning, and of E. F. Cox, rear brakeman on the freight, was taken by the Marion county coroner in Indianapolis yesterday, which practically completes the inquiry conducted by that official.

Both York and Cox testified, in effect, that Carl Gross, freight brakeman, told them the switch was closed when they started forward to throw it.

The statement of Cox before the coroner completes the testimony, it is thought, as Hines and York and Gross have already testified, and on these four men rests the responsibility for the open switch, in the opinion of the coroner. The official has not indicated which man he will hold responsible, but has said that the entire crew, with the exception of the fireman and possibly conductor Hines, seems to have had a share in the carelessness of the night.

Coroner Durham said yesterday he would submit his evidence to the grand jury. Prosecutor Baker of Marion county was in the coroner's office during part of the inquiry. He gave attention to the statements of York.

York told practically the same story as the other members of the crew. York said, as he backed his train in, he told Gross to ride in because there would be no use of flagging the passenger, but Gross replied he would stay out a little way. York continued:

"I backed the train into the siding, stopped in the clear, whistled the brakeman in and got off the engine. I took my torch and started to the switch to throw it, meeting Gross about half way. I asked the brakeman if he closed the switch all right. He said: 'Yes, the switch is closed all right.' Looking around I saw rear brakeman Cox by our side. He asked if the switch was thrown all right, and Gross replied that the switch was all right.

"At that the two brakemen walked back toward the engine. I walked back and told the fireman to cover the headlight.

"I heard the passenger train coming. I stepped to the left gangway and saw a train approaching about six or eight car lengths from the switch. It had an oil headlight. I could see the track plainly and seeing the train heading in on the siding, could not believe it. Being about six or seven car lengths from the switch stand I did not have much time to think.

"Looking the second time I could see the train was going to hit the freight train. I think they must have hit about the time I jumped. The first thing I noticed when I came to myself was that there had been a collision between Train 36 and Train 95. I noticed that the cars were badly torn up and several passengers killed and injured. I went ahead and did all I could to get the injured out of the wreckage until my ankle and knee gave out on me and I went back to the sleeper and sat down."

RUSHVILLE IS PLACED IN FORE*Dr. Biederwolf Receives 11 Offers
For County-Wide Campaign as
Result of Local One.*WANTED FOR STATE IN ILL.*Rushville Delegation Plans to Visit
Hamilton, O., Where Meeting
is on, Friday Night.

The fame of Rushville and Rush county has spread afar as a direct result of the county-wide evangelistic campaign which was conducted here recently by the Rev. W. E. Biederwolf and party of six.

Dr. Biederwolf and party are now conducting a campaign in Hamilton, Ohio. They have been there only two weeks but up to date eleven offers—urgent requests—have been received, asking Dr. Biederwolf and his party come into a county and conduct a campaign similar to the one used here.

Many Rushville people are planning to go to Hamilton, Ohio, next Friday evening to attend the Biederwolf meeting. Some effort is being made to get a special train over the C. H. & D. to bring the crowd back. This will be high school night, similar to the one here, and a special effort is being made to get local high school students to go.

If it is impossible to get a hundred people to promise to go, those who expect to attend will have to leave here some time in the afternoon and return on the train which arrives here the next morning at 1:41 o'clock. Without a special train the delegation would have a long wait until midnight for the return train. A special train would leave immediately after the close of the meeting.

A. C. Brown attended the meeting at Hamilton yesterday. He says that the C. H. & D. station is only four blocks from the tabernacle in Hamilton, so that people can leave here at 5:50 in the evening and arrive in time for the opening of the meeting.

Mr. Brown brought back enthusiastic reports of the meeting in Hamilton. Although it has been in progress only two weeks, the number of concessions already are greater than those during the whole meeting here. Sunday the tabernacle was packed at every meeting. In the afternoon five thousand men crowded the tabernacle to hear the sermon on "The White Life," by Dr. Biederwolf.

Dr. Biederwolf and his helpers are much enthused over the effect that the first county-wide evangelistic campaign has had in stirring others to action. The one here was the first attempt in the field of evangelism. The success of the plan is assured already because of the enthusiasm with which it has been received elsewhere.

It will be recalled that Dr. Biederwolf printed a magazine giving a brief summary of the county-wide campaign here. It was sent to every minister of the Gospel in Indiana. This served to put the ministry in touch with the county-wide idea and let them know what results had been wrought with it.

The most prominent fruit of the county-wide campaign is the call from Illinois, which Dr. Biederwolf has just received, to put on a State-wide evangelistic campaign in that State. He is considering this offer. In addition eleven other offers have been made for him to institute a campaign similar to the one used here.

The success of the project serves to place Rushville in the fore. If the plan is a success elsewhere—and there seems to be little doubt but what it will be—it will always be recalled that it was tried out here.

THE PROTECTION OF FOREIGN RESIDENTS

Reassuring Word Comes From Constantinople.

Washington, Nov. 19.—According to dispatches from Ambassador Rockhill to the state department, all necessary precautions for the protection of the foreign residents of Constantinople have been taken by members of the diplomatic corps there. The ambassador stated that while no serious trouble was feared at present, the representatives of the European governments thought it best to land men from the international fleet before Constantinople for the protection of the embassies and legation. Six men from the United States gunboat Scorpion, station ship at Constantinople, were included in the landing parties. The foreign naval commanders have made all arrangements, Ambassador Rockhill stated, for the protection of foreign residents on both sides of the Bosphorus from San Stefano to Bujukdere. Thorough measures for the protection of the city have also been adopted and no uneasiness is warranted, it is believed.

The United States government has received from the representatives of the powers repeated assurances that Americans will be fully provided for by them in cases of foreigners being endangered.

DYNAMITE CASE DEVELOPMENTS

Government Daily Adding to Weight of Evidence.

WITNESSES FROM THE WEST

Additional Testimony Is Heard in Case Government Is Presenting Against Men Whom It Accuses of a Nation-Wide Conspiracy in Destruction of Property in the Fight Between Iron Workers and "Open Shop" Policy.

Indianapolis, Nov. 19.—In the trial of the dynamite cases the story of how O. A. Tveitmo and Anton Johannsen aided David Caplan, who assisted James B. McNamara in the preparation for the Los Angeles Times explosion, in joining his wife and children and then escaping from California, was told on the witness stand, and also Eugene Clancy's admissions and how he fainted when he was confronted in a lawyer's office with Ortie McManigal.

The escape of Caplan was testified to by Malcolm Laughlin, an employee of a taxicab company. He said his employer in July, 1911, ordered him to take a car to the office of Tveitmo, and when he arrived Johannsen got in and gave him directions as to where to go. Out a little distance the party picked up another man. They went south and then northeast and came to a canon, where he was ordered to stop. Johannsen left the car and soon returned with a woman and two children, a boy and a girl, apparently four and six years old. He took the party, consisting of Johannsen, the strange man and the woman and two children to Reno, Nev., where they caught a train for Chicago. As they left the car Johannsen gave the driver a letter to Tveitmo, which he delivered when he reached San Francisco. The man was Caplan and the woman and children were his wife and little boy and girl.

Special Assistant Attorney General Lawler was a witness and told of conversations with Clancy and J. E. Munsey. The latter denied that he had housed J. B. McNamara after the Times explosion, or that he ever knew him. That Eugene A. Clancy, who was a member of the executive board of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers at the time of the Los Angeles Times explosion, admitted in the office of Oscar Lawler, special assistant attorney general, in the federal building at Los Angeles, Dec. 19, 1911, that he saw J. B. McNamara at Seattle prior to the Times explosion, and that J. B. told him that he was out "blowing up seab jobs" and was out to "clean up the coast," was testified to by Arthur Veitch deputy district attorney at Los Angeles.

Taft's Traits.

President William Howard Taft laid bare his fine traits of character last Saturday night when he sang his own "swan song" in a speech as a guest of the Loftus club in New York City. He showed that he held no animosity against any man and revealed that his chief regret was that he had not accomplished more for the good of the United States.

President Taft has probably been the most maligned man who ever sat in the white house, yet on his out-going he gives the United States no vitriolic outbursts of temper such as come from men who have not been even so unjustly criticized or so unfairly treated.

He did not accuse his false critics:

he did not attack those who had assailed him personally and his administration because of acts of the administration, done with a view to bring about the ends of justice. He revealed that he held malice against no man, even though those of us who like to see fair play and the square deal so much prattled about know that he has been very badly misused by his former friends and political associates.

In his serious moments the president advocated the admission to the halls of congress of members of the president's cabinet; declared that a six-year term in the presidency was enough for any man; advocated strongly the placing in the civil service of practically every officer in the government service and hinted broadly that congress should provide for former presidents so that they need not lower the dignity of the position they have held when they enter into private life.

to gay and from the philosophy, which he said four years in the white house had taught him, to a discussion of problems which face the nation. He laughed at the outcome of the election, smiled when he spoke of some of the plans of President-elect Wilson and touched with gentle sarcasm William J. Bryan.

His chief regret, the president said, was that he had been unable to influence the United States Senate to ratify the arbitration treaties with France and Great Britain. In spite of that fact he asked his audience to believe that he would leave office with the deepest gratitude to the American people for the honor they had given him and with the belief that enough progress had been accomplished in his administration to warrant him a feeling that he had done real good for his country.

"One of the results of my observation in the presidency is that the position is not a place to be enjoyed

by a sensitive man" said President Taft.

"The experience in the presidency toughens the hide of the occupant so as to enable him to resist the stings of criticism directed against him from the time he takes office until he lays it down.

"I don't know that criticism has been any greater in this administration than in a previous administration. All I know is that it was my first experience and that it seemed to me as if I had been more greatly tried than most Presidents by such methods.

"The result in some respects is unfortunate in that after one or two efforts to meet unfounded accusations, despair in the matter leads to indifference and perhaps to an indifference toward both just and unjust criticism.

"This condition helps the comfort of the patient, but I doubt if it makes him a better president.

"I think the period for successful

muckraking is gradually drawing to a close. I hope so. We must consider that the ebullition in muckraking literature is only one of the temporary excuses of the time which is curing itself by tiring those whose patronage formed the motive for its beginning and rise."

New Yorkers have just voted $50,000,000 more for road improvement. The Empire State has made a heavy investment in permanent highways and cheerfully provides more. All concerned see that it pays.

A DEFINITION.

Which Shall It Be?

Do you intend to continue laboring, burning valuable fuel and destroying high priced food with that old worn out cook stove?

You know that old stove eats up a lot of fuel each year.

You know you have trouble in getting it to bake just right, in fact, spoil a batch of bread every once in a while—you know it costs considerable for yearly repairs.

Stop and think and figure.

Wouldn't it pay you to buy a good range—a range with a reputation—

The Great Majestic and Malleable Iron Range

You make no mistake in buying the GREAT MAJESTIC—it's the range with THE REPUTATION—ask your neighbors. Then, too, it's made just right and of the right kind of material—MALLEABLE and CHARCOAL IRON—riveted together practically air tight—lined with pure asbestos board—parts being malleable can't break—has a moveable reservoir and an oven that don't warp—that's why the MAJESTIC uses so little fuel, bakes just right every day in the year (browns bread just right without turning,) heats 15 gallons of water while breakfast is cooking—properly handled lasts a lifetime, costs practically nothing for repairs.

Don't buy the range you expect to last a lifetime "unsight unseen;" you'll be sure to be disappointed. Come to our store during [demonstration week, see the GREAT MAJESTIC—have its many exclusive features explained—find out why the MAJESTIC is 300% stronger than other ranges where most ranges are weakest.

PRIMARY LAW TO MAKE BIG CHANGE

Proposed Legislation is Prepared by a Special Commission Appointed at Indianapolis.

CLEAR OUT OF ALL POLITICS

Legislature Will be Asked to Pass it Takes Politics Out of City Elections.

Rush county politicians of all parties will be interested in the provisions of a primary election bill which an advisory commission at Indianapolis has just finished drafting and which will be offered for passage at the forthcoming session of the legislature.

If this bill should become a law, municipal elections would be taken out of partisan politics, candidates for all elective offices would be nominated and members of political committees, presidential electors and delegates to national conventions chosen at primary elections.

The proposed law would include the nomination of candidates for United States senator by direct primary and an expression of a preference for president and vice president.

In city elections it is proposed that the names of political parties shall not enter into the nomination and election of candidates. Persons seeking nominations would get on the ballot by petitions signed by not less than 2 per cent. of the electors in not less than one-sixth of the election precincts of the city. Any candidate receiving a majority of all votes cast would be declared elected. If no candidate received a majority of all votes cast, the two receiving the highest number of votes would be candidates at the regular fall election.

For all offices other than municipal, names may be placed on the primary ballot either by party committees or by petition, or both. The party committees are authorized, under the proposed bill, to name tickets not later than the eighth, Tuesday preceding the primary election, such selection to be made at a public meeting of the committee.

At any time not later than four weeks preceding the primary election, any person may have his name placed on the primary ballot by petition.

In the case of candidates for United States senator or state office the petition must be signed by at least 1 per cent. of the voters of six counties. For other offices the petition must be signed by a specified per cent. of the voters of the district in which the person is seeking the nomination. Candidates for the judgeship of any court are to be placed on a separate non-partisan ballot, the candidates for nomination to be selected by petition only.

Election officials are to be named by the judge of the circuit court, to serve for a term of two years, not more than two representatives of the same political party to be on any one election board. The judge is to post on the door of the courthouse ten days before the election boards are to be appointed, the names of the persons he proposes to appoint. Election officers thus selected would serve as registration, primary election and general election officials.

It is proposed that the primary election shall be held concurrently with the first registration period, which is in May, or, if any change should be made in the registration law, not later than the second Tuesday in May. At the same time, the members of the party committees, from precinct to state would be elected.

A voter at a primary election would not be required to state his politics. He would be handed the ballots of all parties participating and would select the one he desired to use and return the others unused. The proposed bill is taken largely from the New York primary election bill as it was before the New York legislature eliminated most of the safeguards.

The proposed bill provides heavy penalties for violation. It is proposed that candidates nominated for the various state offices and for the legislature shall meet at the state capitol at noon on the fourth Tuesday of September after the primary election to formulate the state platforms of their parties, which are to be made public not later than 6 p. m. of the following day.

THE ROOT OF EVIL

BY
THOMAS DIXON

Copyright, 1911, by Thomas Dixon

A feeble cheer rose from the hundred or more who knew the doctor personally. It was the only response the sullen crowd gave to his burst of feeling. They were not in sympathy with his optimism. The anguish of the present moment of bread hunger and cold was too keen.

When the doctor sat down Stuart saw Harriet suddenly lean over, draw his big shaggy head down and kiss him. He hadn't recognized her before.

The next speaker made his attack on the corruption and graft of our system of government with brutal frankness. He assailed the foundations of the republic, and at last the principles which underlie civilized society itself. Undoubtedly he was a madman, driven insane by the fierce struggle for bread, but none the less a dangerous man. With scathing, bitter wit he flayed the corruption of our system of democracy.

The speaker closed his tirade with a fierce personal attack on the man who had made five millions in a corner on bread and flouted his ill gotten gains in the face of starving men and women.

Nan's face flashed with sudden rage. "Take me to my car, Jim. I've an idea—I'm going to execute it at once."

"Wouldn't you like to meet the doctor and his daughter before you go?"

"Thanks. Hardly. You know he is on Mr. Bivens' black list."

"I'd forgotten that," he answered regretfully. "I'd like awfully for you

"Be of good cheer—the day dawns!"

to meet Harriet. I'm sure you'd like her."

Nan smiled.

"I could see she likes you. I don't think she took a fancy to me, however."

"Nonsense, Nan," he said, with annoyance. "She couldn't have seen you. I didn't know she was here until she kissed her father."

"Perhaps my eyes are keener than yours."

rudely past and sprang into his automobile. He waved his hand to his chauffeur. His gesture was mistaken by a pair of keen, restless eyes for a command to his reserves to disperse the crowd.

A pale, shabby young fellow leaped past the line of police into the open space and rushed straight for the reserves. His long, thin arm was lifted high in the air clutching a black thing with a lighted fuse sparkling from its crest.

A murmur rippled through the crowd, the police stood still and stared, and the next moment the bomb exploded in the boy's hand, and his body lay on the stones a mangled heap of torn flesh and blood-soaked rags.

The police charged the crowd and clubbed them without mercy. The people fled in confusion in every direction, and in five minutes the square was cleared.

Stuart had hurried Nan to her car and rushed back to the scene of the tragedy. He readily passed the lines of the police, who recognized him as the district attorney.

The doctor reached the spot and Harriet was holding the dying boy's head in her lap.

Stuart bent over her curiously and slowly asked:

"You were not afraid to rush up here with your father and take that poor mangled thing in your arms?"

"Of course not," she replied simply. "Papa says he's dying—nothing can be done for him. They've sent for an ambulance."

The doctor pressed Stuart's arm and spoke in low tones:

"I've made some big mistakes in my life, boy. I'm just beginning to see them. I've read a new message in the flutter of this poor fellow's pulse. I'll not be slow to heed it."

When the doctor reached home the face of the dying boy haunted him. He began to fear his struggle with Bivens in his long drawn and fiercely contested lawsuit was an act of the same essential quality of blind physical violence. He began to see that the real motive back of his struggle was hatred of the man—this little counter jumper who had destroyed his business.

It was the irony of a fate that sank its poisoned dagger into his heart. He faced the fact at last without flinching.

He rose and paced the floor of his library for a half hour with measured tread. He stopped suddenly and clinched his big fists instinctively.

"I do hate him—with undying, everlasting hatred, and I pray God to give me greater strength to hate him more!"

He rose with sudden determination. He would not surrender. He would fight it out with this little swarthy scoundrel, win or lose. His house was mortgaged; the last dollar of his savings he had spent in helping others, and the money set aside to finish Harriet's course in music had been lost in the panic. He would fight it out somehow and win. But the one thing that must not fail was the perfection of his girl's voice. The court of appeals would certainly render its decision before her next term's work would begin. She could rest during the summer. It would do her good. If he could be firm with his tenants and collect his room rents promptly from every one, the income from his house was still sufficient to pay the interest on the mortgage and give him a little to eat. It would be enough. Food for the soul was more important. He resolved to ask Stuart to collect his rents.

He looked up and Harriet stood at his side.

"What have you been crying about?" he asked anxiously.

"Oh, nothing much," was the low answer. "I really don't know—perhaps the thing that makes the birds out there in the square chirp while the snow is still on the ground, the feeling that spring is coming."

"You're keeping something from me, dearest," he whispered, slipping his arm about her waist. "Tell me."

"You really believe in my voice, don't you?" she asked slowly.

"Believe in it? Do I believe in God?"

"Could I go abroad right away and finish my work there?"

She asked the question with such painful intensity, the father looked up with a start.

"Why do you wish to go now, child?" he asked.

"I've a confession to make, papa, dear. I'm in love, desperately and hopelessly."

A sob caught her voice, and the

rather's arms drew her to his heart and held her.

"But why hopelessly, my baby?" he asked. "Your hair is beaten gold, your eyes are deep and true, your slender little form has all the symmetry and beauty of a sylph. You are young, radiant, glorious, and your voice the angels would envy."

"But the man I love doesn't realize all that yet, papa, dear. He is bound by the memories of the past to a woman he once loved, a woman who is evil at heart, and though she betrayed him for the lust of money is determined to hold him still her slave. But she shall not. I'll fight for him! And you'll help me, papa, won't you?"

The father drew her close.

"Won't I—just wait and see! But you haven't told me his name? I've been very blind, I fear."

"You've never guessed?"

She lifted her face to his in surprise.

"No."

"Jim."

"Our Jim Stuart?"

She nodded. Her voice wouldn't work.

"Oh, I see, I see!" the father mused. "The first love of a child's heart grown slowly into the great passion of life."

Again the little head nodded.

"You understand now why I wish to get away, to finish my work abroad. I'll be nearer to him with the ocean between us. He'll miss me then. I feel it, know it. When I return he will be proud of my voice. I shall go mad if I stay here and see him dangling at that woman's heels. I shall sing when he hears me as I never sang before, and I shall say to him then all the unspoken things I dare not put in speech."

The father kissed the trembling lips and answered firmly:

"I'll raise the money for you right away."

And then for half an hour she lay in his arms while he whispered beautiful thoughts of her future. When he sent her to bed he had kissed the last tear away.

"And now I've got to surrender," he said to himself.

To be continued.

BULGARS HELD IN FIRM CHECK

Turks Still Defend Approach to Constantinople.

THE CAPITAL CITY GUARDED

Detachments From Foreign Ships in Port of Beleagured Seat of Ottoman Empire Patrol the Streets of Apparently Doomed City, Insuring by Their Presence Considerate Treatment of Foreigners Located There.

Belgrade, Nov. 19.—The Politika says the Montenegrins have captured the city of Scutari, in Albania. The report cannot be confirmed.

Constantinople, Nov. 19.—It is stated that the sultan has personally appealed to the sovereigns of the great powers to intervene and stop the war. It also is stated on the highest official authority that an armistice between the Montenegrins and the Turks is practically certain and will perhaps be effected before many hours have elapsed.

Constantinople, Nov. 19.—At the Tchataldja forts the brunt of the fighting has swung to the center of the lines. There the division under Mahmoud Mukhtar made a spirited frontal attack upon the Bulgars and, according to the official Turkish reports, broke up their formation, seized a number of guns and drove the Bulgars back. The Ottoman reports admit that the Turkish losses were heavy as they had to advance through a hail of artillery fire.

The Bulgarians seem to be confining themselves to a bombardment of the lines. A number of gunless Anatolians have been sent back to Constantinople from the lines, as they were merely encumbering the army.

While the capital awaits the details of the fighting sailors from the foreign ships are patrolling the streets of the city. They are the object of much interest to the natives who crowd about them as they make camp in front of the foreign embassies at Pera.

FALL OF MONASTIR

Important Turkish Town Now in the Hands of the Allies.

London, Nov. 19.—The Turkish town of Monastir has fallen to the Servians and Greeks. Fifty thousand Turks and three generals have laid down their arms.

The main body of the western Turkish army fought desperately to hold the important town, but, the fall of Monastir was assured when a Greek army cut the communications with Orchida to the north where the Turks were planning to retreat in case of defeat.

The struggle was most bloody. One report has it that the Serbs alone lost 2,500 during the first day's battle. With the capture of Monastir the work of the Serbo-Greek army in the west is practically done. The Turks in Monastir were discouraged by their defeats, disorganized and lacked provisions.

The Greeks sent back word to Athens that at Salonica which they captured on the way to Monastir they captured $30,000,000 from the Turks in that city.

HARD PRESSED

Mexican Rebels Drove Federal Troops Across Line Into United States.

Washington, Nov. 19.—Mexican federal troops have been driven across the border into the United States near Palomas, Mexico, following their defeat by rebels, according to state department advices. Another federal force has been defeated at the Nogales ranch by a rebel band of eighty men. The federals who were not killed or captured, fled while rebels took possession of the ranch and all its property.

Allens Facing Death Chair.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 19.—The Virginia supreme court of appeals has refused writs of error in the cases of Floyd and Claude Allen, father and son under death sentence for the murder of the officers of the Carroll county court. Only the governor now can save the condemned men. The Allens are to die in the electric chair Friday morning.

BROKERS TAKEN QUITE UNAWARE

Simultaneous Raids Made In Many Cities.

WIDESPREAD FRAUD ALLEGED

Postal Authorities Say the American Redemption Company, a Rochester Concern With Branches in Many Cities, Has Been Using the Mails to Carry on an Alleged Fraudulent Game, Cleaning Up Big Sum.

New York, Nov. 19.—Closing of the net which the government spread over a year ago to catch the agents and principals of the American Redemption company, a Rochester concern, which is accused of using the mails in a scheme to defraud, was followed by arrests made in seven cities by post-office authorities. Estimates of the amount secured by the scheme range between $500,000 and $1,500,000.

Prisoners were taken on warrants issued in New York, Cincinnati, Rochester, Cleveland, Newark, Boston and Chicago. The raids on the offices of the so-called brokers took place at the same time so that no word of the impending danger could be flashed from one office to the others.

The men under arrest and those sought by the government are accused of defrauding promoters and infant stock companies through fees received on promise of guaranteeing securities and securing their sale. The postoffice people say that fees were also secured for "investigations" of property and that some excuse was always found by the men under arrest for failing to render the promised services. The ring is said by the postal authorities to have had connections in Canada and England and to have made particular use of a London branch in carrying out its scheme. Inspectors spent some time investigating the London end of the business before concluding the arrangements for making arrests in this country.

In New York, Mason G. Worth, who is accused of having had part in the alleged scheme to defraud, was arrested in his office. Worth said he was a broker. According to the complaint drawn up by Assistant United States Attorney Rosa, Worth was the agent of the American Redemption company. The postal authorities say that the usual plan proposed was that the stock of the company to which the agent of the American Redemption company wrote should be marketed providing that first the issue was guaranteed by the American Redemption company. The guarantee having been secured, it was often promised that the International Bankers' Alliance of England would take over the proposition. In return for its trouble the American Redemption company, say the postal authorities, charged a brokerage fee of 1 per cent on the face value of the securities and sometimes filed a bill for the cost of the investigation.

Worth was arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields, who held him in $5,000 bail. Bail was not secured and Worth was locked up in the Tombs.

One of the inspectors discussing the general operations of the redemption company, said customers, after paying the 1 per cent commission on their stock, were informed that the International Bankers' Alliance of England would not act until an agent had investigated. They were further informed that they would have to pay for the investigation. Usually negotiations stopped right there.

WILSON CAN'T KEEP OUT OF SPOT LIGHT

Bermudans Not Inclined to Let Him Rest.

Hamilton, Bermuda, Nov. 12.—The very first thing that happened to President-Elect Wilson, who is seeking a rest, when he and his family stepped off the steamship Bermudian, was an address of welcome.

On the dock to meet the Wilson party was Mayor Wainwright, who bore a copy of an illuminated address of welcome prepared by the corporation of the city of Hamilton and told Mr. Wilson how proud Bermuda was to welcome him. There was a big crowd on the dock, and they cheered lustily as Mr. Wilson said that he hoped nothing would disturb the cordiality between Bermuda and the United States while he was president.

Then Mr. Wilson sent Lieutenant Lawrence, his aide-de-camp, to thank the chamber of commerce for their welcome, and drove to a hotel through streets gay with bunting flung out from all the houses in his honor. It was a triumphant procession for the party, for they were cheered all along the way.

As soon as he got to the hotel the president-elect found all sorts of proposals awaiting him from the Bermudians, who want to be sure that he has a good time on the island.

When he could get away Mr. Wilson headed his party for their cottage in Glen Cove, at Paget, and there they soon were busied getting settled. Mr. Wilson rowed over to Hamilton to buy a bed. He still refuses to have anything to say about politics.

THEY FEEL FOR HER

Romans Express Sympathy For American Signora's Predicament.

Rome, Nov. 19.—The Moschini scandal arising out of the arrest of Signora Moschini, formerly Lulu Davis of Austin, Tex., wife of a wealthy deputy, while in the company of a naval lieutenant a few days ago, is extensively commented on in the press. Most of the comment is very favorable to the American girl, who has suffered so much since her husband attempted to divorce her.

Deputy Moschini's cowardly prosecution of his wife is deplored. Lieutenant Bellegard, who is an aide-de-camp to Admiral Nicastro, and who was arrested with Signora Moschini, was released on bail. Signora Moschini is still in jail, despite the efforts of her counsel. She will probably, however, be released provisionally.

Looking For an Early Verdict.

New York, Nov. 19.—It was the opinion of the defense and prosecution and of spectators who have followed the testimony in the trial of Gyp The Blood, Lefty Louie, Whitey Lewis and Dago Frank for the killing of Herman Rosenthal that when the case goes to the jury this afternoon following Justice Goff's charge, the gunmen will not have to remain awake very late tonight to learn the verdict.

Overpowered Their Keeper.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 19.—Five inmates of the county jail escaped after an attack on Fred Mullen, the rock pile superintendent. Mullen was attacked by John Johnson with one of the hammers used in breaking rock, while his brother, Harry Johnson, took the keys to the gates. All the men who escaped were in jail for short terms on minor charges.

The Doctrine of Good Shoes May Be Profitably Preached Only By a Good Shoe Man

Frankly, we'd hate to be in the "near shoe" business! We'd hate to carry lines of shoes that sell only because the price is small. Somehow, we feel that it would be about as creditable to circulate bad money as to sell bad shoes. Perhaps the selling of poor shoes will stop, sometime. It ought to stop.

THE SOLDIERS HAD TO BOMBARD MONASTERY

Notorious Bandit Caused No End of Trouble.

Czestochowa, Russian Poland, Nov. 19.—Before he was finally killed, the notorious bandit Koslowski held up a regiment of infantry, two squadrons of cavalry and a battery of artillery and terrorized hundreds of monks here. Policemen attempted to arrest Koslowski in the street. The latter shot the policemen and also a passer-by who attempted to assist the officers, and then fled to the celebrated Paulist monastery at Jasna Gora and hid with a companion in the bastion. From this place the men threw two bombs and fired volleys at the approaching police, who soon found the work too hot and sent for troops. A regiment of infantry, two squadrons of cavalry and a battery of quick-firing guns soon surrounded the monastery and began an assault, to which the bandits replied vigorously.

The fight was kept up all night. Early in the morning the soldiers made a breach in the bastion wall by means of a bomb and went inside. Koslowski was found dead, having been riddled with bullets, but the other bandit succeeded in making his escape.

Meanwhile the monks and a host of pilgrims were huddled panic-stricken in the church, which they were not permitted to leave. It is believed that the other bandit is hidden somewhere about the vast monastery and searching parties are looking for him.

WILL MAKE GOOD XMAS PRESENTS

Public Library Commission Exhibits Here Books Suitable For Children at Yuletide Gifts.

TO BE AT PUBLIC LIBRARY

People May View Them to Get Ideas on Suitable Presents For Young Folks.

There will be on exhibition at the Rushville Public Library for the next five days one hundred books selected by the Public Library Commission of Indiana to form a collection suitable for gifts to children. This collection is sent to the public libraries of the State for exhibition purposes and an opportunity is thus afforded parents and friends who desire to give the best books, to see and examine some of the volumes, which librarians have found are favorites with boys and girls, and which are worthy of a place on the shelves of a child's own library.

In the collection there has been an attempt to meet the needs of children of all ages. The books range in scope from the picture books, rhymes and jingles for the baby up to Scott, Dickens and Stevenson for high school boy and girl. Myths, legends, fairy tales, poetry, biography, history, travel, Bible stories, athletic stories, wholesome tales of adventure, stories of school and home life have been included.

In meeting the needs of the children, the pocket-book has also been kept in mind. The books vary in price from 25 cents to $2.25.

Some one has said that "the best literature is none too good for children. Nowadays the idea is pretty well disseminated that the choicest from all the garnered riches of the great world of literature should be given to them, that they may early be possessed of thoughts and feelings that are true, large, sweet and beautiful." When the far-reaching influence of a book is considered, and when that influence is intensified by ownership, what better gift can be presented to a child? What could be selected with more care?

The annual output of juvenile books is great in numbers. In the Christmas shops the bargain tables are piled high with a bewildering display of mediocre books, few of which are worthy of being owned. With care in selection, the best literature can be bought for the same money. Montrose J. Moses spoke most truly when he said, "Imperative it is in all cases that book buying should not be a lottery, but most persistently apparent does it become that a child's own individual book upon the Christmas tree or for a birthday should not represent a grown-up's afterthought." The child's own desire and likings should be kept in mind and satisfied with the best.

obtain a divorce from the Ohio woman. Shortly after the decree was granted he was married to Miss Hubbard. The girl would have graduated from the Lynn High School in five days had she not married.

The feeling of Lynn residents against the "minister" was intense, and when he returned to that town with his bride trouble began. An attempt was made to place a coat of tar and feathers over his body. He was rescued from the angry mob by officers.

Sentiment in Winchester inflamed anew against him, and he was forced to leave the city, fearing trouble. August 31 last he was arrested on a warrant from Cincinnati charging him with failing to provide for his children.

"I mean to stand by the old ship till she sinks. They may lock me up, but they can't get the salvation out of my heart. Those who have been investigating this thing are jealous, that's all. It's not the world that is persecuting me, it is the church. Yes, I married four times, and I am not ashamed of it, either. We all make mistakes, and perhaps it was one of my mistakes to marry this young girl who was 28 years younger than I. But I did it for love of home and companionship."

This statement was made in Cincinnati last night by "Rev." S. J. Winchester. He emphasized that he was simply a "hired hand" in the employ of the society, and that he therefore was unable to say what was done with the money collected by it. He said the work done by the organization so far consisted in "building up a society for the protection of girls." He declared the management of the society's affairs was in the hands of his son "Colonel" Winchester, but he was unable to say where the latter is at present. "Rev." Winchester said he had just returned from a trip throughout the South. He was called to Cincinnati, he said, on the instigation of officials, to come to the aid of his wife, who is in a serious condition at the City Hospital in Cincinnati. He was not permitted to see the woman last night.

HELD REVIVAL HERE UNDER FIRE*"Rev." Winchester, Who Conducted
Tent Meeting in Rushville Last
Summer, Subject of Probe.*WIFE FOUND IN COVINGTON*Flight of Spouse, Who Was Mis-
treated by "Evangelist" Here,
Arouses Cincinnati Officials.*HIS ACTIONS HERE RECALLED*Neighbors Aroused at Time by Mer-
ciless Manner in Which he
Beat Frail Wife.

The "Rev." S. J. Winchester, who posed as "The Drummer Evangelist" while he was here for more than two months last summer, who wore a uniform and an inscription on his cap, and who, neighbors say, often beat his frail wife into insensibility, is the subject of a careful and cautious investigation in Cincinnati which may be the result of his downfall.

The investigation was started by the Rev. Robert Watson, pastor of the Cincinnati Presbyterian Church of the Covenant and President of the Cincinnati Vigilance Society.

"The American and International Association for the Prevention of White Slave Traffic" was founded in the fall of 1911 by "Colonel" S. Winchester, President, but has been under the direct management of his father, "Rev." S. J. Winchester, formerly a chef in a Cincinnati cafe.

It is "Rev." Winchester against whom the investigation is directed, and in whom Rushville people are interested. "Rev." Winchester is said to have married four times. His matrimonial troubles have been aired repeatedly in Cincinnati courts, and his name was in the spotlight about six years ago, in connection with that of Miss Edna Hubbard, then 16 years of age.

It is because of the present misery of this girl, who is now Mrs. Winchester, and her three little children, whose ages range between one and five years, that the investigation into the "Anti-White Slave Society," and in particular into the personal affairs of "Rev." Winchester, were brought to the attention of Cincinnati city officials.

Last Thursday morning Mrs. Winchester, who is now about 23 years old, was found sobbing on a street in Covington, Ky., by a policeman. The woman told the officer that she had no money to care for herself or her three little ones and that her husband had left the city. The policeman referred Mrs. Winchester to Miss Emma Mae Talmage, Superintendent of the Hope Mission of Cincinnati. Miss Talmage housed the woman and her youngest child in that institution and conveyed the other two children to another mission.

"What this unfortunate young woman has told me is a story so horrible that it surpasses all I have heard in my long and extensive experience in mission work," said Miss Talmage.

"What Mrs. Winchester has told me was in confidence, and I shall not reveal it until the proper time comes. However, this much is certain: This investigation will result in a revelation such as has never been heard before, and something must be done immediately for the care of this woman and children. Mrs. Winchester is near a physical breakdown.

Miss Talmage also said that she knew "Wife No. 2" of "Rev." Winchester, but refused to reveal the name. She said the woman is living in Cincinnati, and has a little boy, the son of "Rev." Winchester, and that the latter had frequent legal troubles because of failure to pay alimony for the support of the boy. People in the west part of the city still mention the name of the "Rev." Winchester with disdain, a snarl or a sneer. He was probably the most despised and rejected man who ever lived in that community. Winchester had what he chose to call a "Gospel" tent in which he preached. He and his wife and three children lived in a smaller tent nearby. The two tents were located in a vacant lot between Hannah and Spencer streets, and about midway between Second and Third streets.

People living in that community were sure that Winchester beat his wife unmercifully. But he had her so much under his control and so completely covered that any interference on the part of neighbors or the police was always resented by her.

A woman living in the community where Winchester was located during his stay here said this morning that she and others in the neighborhood had heard the piercing screams of Mrs. Winchester at late hours during the night when Winchester evidently believed everyone was in bed. Many people were awakened night after night by the usual practice of Winchester's—that of beating his wife.

Neighbors often talked of taking the law into their own hands and giving Winchester the kind of a beating he administered to his wife nightly. The police were notified many times about Winchester's actions. They were loathe to believe such things when the man posed as a "reverend" and a very good man. Finally one day the police received a very insistent call to come to the "Gospel" tent. Chief McAllister responded. He walked into the tent unannounced. Winchester was singing, and reading from the Bible, and Mrs. Winchester was lying on a couch. They both denied that there was any difficulty between them. The children were questioned, but they, too, were evidently afraid, on account of their father's threats, to tell the truth.

Winchester came here the week of June 17, last, and departed Thursday, August 26, taking both tents and all his belongings with him. He "milked" the local press for all the space he could get boosting his so-called "Gospel" meetings. He announced many converts, and frequently had special sermons for women only. One special sermon was on the topic, "Social Purity and the White Slave Traffic," preached Tuesday, July 16.

Mrs. Winchester was taken from the tent here Saturday, August 27. She told people in that neighborhood that her health had failed and that she was on the way to her mother's home at Winchester, Ind.

A dispatch from Winchester tells of the sordid life of Winchester before he came here, and how he enticed his girl-wife to marry him when she was but a girl of sixteen years and about to graduate from high school.

Winchester first went to Randolph county ten years ago from Cincinnati. He acted as an evangelist, and located his tent at Lynn, a small town. He had held meetings there but a short time until he became acquainted with Miss Edna Hubbard, 16 years old, known as one of the most beautiful young women in the country. She resided at Lynn, and was popular in society.

At the time Winchester was said to have had a wife living in Cincinnati.

Mrs. Mary Hubbard is said to have furnished him money with which to

Harry Galliger of Indianapolis was arraigned before Mayor Black this afternoon and pleaded not guilty to a charge of associating with Margaret Dunwoody, a fifteen-year-old girl, reputed to be of immoral character. Galliger's case was set down for trial tomorrow afternoon and he went back to jail, being unable to secure bond. Galliger was arrested late last night near the Havens police building in Third street by policeman Wolter. He was accompanied by the Dunwoody girl and both were taken to jail. Galliger appeared at a local theater last night with some feature pictures.

The Dunwoody girl is a ward of the juvenile court, and she will more than likely be sent to Clermont, the Indiana Girls' School. She has been in numerous escapades, and recently was before the juvenile judge in connection with the Weevie case.

A man giving his name as George Ellis pleaded not guilty to a public intoxication charge and the trial set for tomorrow. Ellis was found along the C. H. & D. railroad east of the city yesterday afternoon and placed in jail. He stated his home was in Chicago and that he was on his way to Dayton.

to Have Share in Carelessness
of Night.

The testimony of Willis York, brother of Mrs. U. G. Beaver of this city and engineer on the freight into which the fast passenger crashed in the C. H. & D. Irvington wreck last Wednesday morning, and of E. F. Cox, rear brakeman on the freight, was taken by the Marion county coroner in Indianapolis yesterday, which practically completes the inquiry conducted by that official.

Both York and Cox testified, in effect, that Carl Gross, freight brakeman, told them the switch was closed when they started forward to throw it.

The statement of Cox before the coroner completes the testimony, it is thought, as Hines and York and Gross have already testified, and on these four men rests the responsibility for the open switch, in the opinion of the coroner. The official has not indicated which man he will hold responsible, but has said that the entire crew, with the exception of the fireman and possibly conductor Hines, seems to have had a share in the carelessness of the night.

Coroner Durham said yesterday he would submit his evidence to the grand jury. Prosecutor Baker of Marion county was in the coroner's office during part of the inquiry. He gave attention to the statements of York.

York told practically the same story as the other members of the crew. York said, as he backed his train in, he told Gross to ride it because there would be no use of flagging the passenger, but Gross replied he would stay out a little way. York continued:

"I backed the train into the siding, stopped in the clear, whistled the brakeman in and got off the engine. I took my torch and started to the switch to throw it, meeting Gross about half way. I asked the brakeman if he closed the switch all right. He said: 'Yes, the switch is closed all right.' Looking around I saw rear brakeman Cox by our side. He asked if the switch was thrown all right, and Gross replied that the switch was all right.

"At that the two brakemen walked back toward the engine. I walked back and told the fireman to cover the headlight.

"I heard the passenger train coming. I stepped to the left gangway and saw a train approaching about six or eight car lengths from the switch. It had an oil headlight. I could see the track plainly and seeing the train heading in on the siding, could not believe it. Being about six or seven car lengths from the switch stand I did not have much time to think.

"Looking the second time I could see the train was going to hit the freight train. I think they must have hit about the time I jumped. The first thing I noticed when I came to myself was that there had been a collision between Train 36 and Train 95. I noticed that the cars were badly torn up and several passengers killed and injured. I went ahead and did all I could to get the injured out of the wreckage until my ankle and knee gave out on me and I went back to the sleeper and sat down."

PLACED IN FORE*Dr. Biederwolf Receives 11 Offers
For County-Wide Campaign as
Result of Local One.*WANTED FOR STATE IN ILL.*Rushville Delegation Plans to Visit
Hamilton, O., Where Meeting
is on, Friday Night.

The fame of Rushville and Rush county has spread far as a direct result of the county-wide evangelistic campaign which was conducted here recently by the Rev. W. E. Biederwolf and party of six.

Dr. Biederwolf and party are now conducting a campaign in Hamilton, Ohio. They have been there only two weeks but up to date eleven offers—urgent requests—have been received, asking Dr. Biederwolf and his party come into a county and conduct a campaign similar to the one used here.

Many Rushville people are planning to go to Hamilton, Ohio, next Friday evening to attend the Biederwolf meeting. Some effort is being made to get a special train over the C. H. & D. to bring the crowd back. This will be high school night, similar to the one here, and a special effort is being made to get local high school students to go.

If it is impossible to get a hundred people to promise to go, those who expect to attend will have to leave here some time in the afternoon and return on the train which arrives here the next morning at 1:41 o'clock. Without a special train the delegation would have a long wait until midnight for the return train. A special train would leave immediately after the close of the meeting.

A. C. Brown attended the meeting at Hamilton yesterday. He says that the C. H. & D. station is only four blocks from the tabernacle in Hamilton, so that people can leave here at 5:30 in the evening and arrive in time for the opening of the meeting.

Mr. Brown brought back enthusiastic reports of the meeting in Hamilton. Although it has been in progress only two weeks, the number of conversions already are greater than those during the whole meeting here. Sunday the tabernacle was packed at every meeting. In the afternoon five thousand men crowded the tabernacle to hear the sermon on "The White Life," by Dr. Biederwolf.

Dr. Biederwolf and his helpers are much enthused over the effect that the first county-wide evangelistic campaign has had in stirring others to action. The one here was the first attempt in the field of evangelism. The success of the plan is assured already because of the enthusiasm with which it has been received elsewhere.

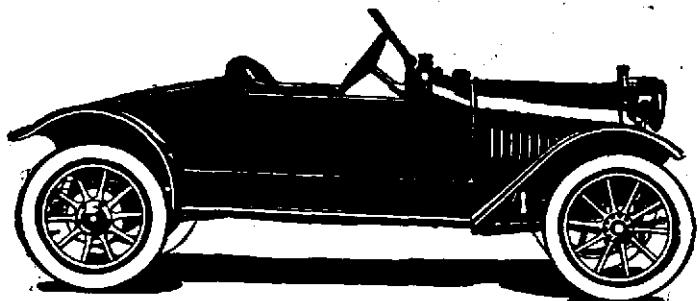

It will be recalled that Dr. Biederwolf printed a magazine giving a brief summary of the county-wide campaign here. It was sent to every minister of the Gospel in Indiana. This served to put the ministry in touch with the county-wide idea and let them know what results had been wrought with it.

The most prominent fruit of the county-wide campaign is the call from Illinois, which Dr. Biederwolf has just received, to put on a State-wide evangelistic campaign in that State. He is considering this offer. In addition eleven other offers have been made for him to institute a campaign similar to the one used here.

The success of the project serves to place Rushville in the fore. If the plan is a success elsewhere—and there seems to be little doubt but what it will be—it will always be recalled that it was tried out here.

American Ambassador to the Court of the Ottoman Empire.

THE PROTECTION OF FOREIGN RESIDENTS

Reassuring Word Comes From Constantinople.

Washington, Nov. 19.—According to dispatches from Ambassador Rockhill to the state department, all necessary precautions for the protection of the foreign residents of Constantinople have been taken by members of the diplomatic corps there. The ambassador stated that while no serious trouble was feared at present, the representatives of the European governments thought it best to land men from the international fleet before Constantinople for the protection of the embassies and legation. Six men from the United States gunboat Scorpion, station ship at Constantinople, were included in the landing parties. The foreign naval commanders have made all arrangements, Ambassador Rockhill stated, for the protection of foreign residents on both sides of the Bosphorus from San Stefano to Bujukdere. Thorough measures for the protection of the city have also been adopted and no uneasiness is warranted, it is believed.

The United States government has received from the representatives of the powers repeated assurances that Americans will be fully provided for by them in cases of foreigners being endangered.

DYNAMITE CASE DEVELOPMENTS

Government Daily Adding to Weight of Evidence.

WITNESSES FROM THE WEST

Additional Testimony Is Heard in Case Government Is Presenting Against Men Whom It Accuses of a Nation-Wide Conspiracy in Destruction of Property in the Fight Between Iron
Workers and "Open Shop" Policy.

Indianapolis, Nov. 19.—In the trial of the dynamite cases the story of how O. A. Tveitmo and Anton Johannsen aided David Caplan, who assisted James B. McNamara in the preparation for the Los Angeles Times explosion, in joining his wife and children and then escaping from California, was told on the witness stand, and also Eugene Clancy's admissions and how he fainted when he was confronted in a lawyer's office with Ortie McNamara.

The escape of Caplan was testified to by Malcolm Laughlin, an employee of a taxicab company. He said his employer in July, 1911, ordered him to take a car to the office of Tveitmo, and when he arrived Johannsen got in and gave him directions as to where to go. Out a little distance the party picked up another man. They went south and then northeast and came to a canon, where he was ordered to stop. Johannsen left the car and soon returned with a woman and two children, a boy and a girl, apparently four and six years old. He took the party, consisting of Johannsen, the strange man and the woman and two children to Reno, Nev., where they caught a train for Chicago. As they left the car Johannsen gave the driver a letter to Tveitmo, which he delivered when he reached San Francisco. The man was Caplan and the woman and children were his wife and little boy and girl.

Special Assistant Attorney General Lawler was a witness and told of conversations with Clancy and J. E. Munsey. The latter denied that he had housed J. B. McNamara after the Times explosion, or that he ever knew him. That Eugene A. Clancy, who was a member of the executive board of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers at the time of the Los Angeles Times explosion, admitted in the office of Oscar Lawler, special assistant attorney general, in the federal building at Los Angeles, Dec. 19, 1911, that he saw J. B. McNamara at Seattle prior to the Times explosion, and that J. B. told him that he was out "blowing up scab jobs" and was out to "clean up the coast," was testified to by Arthur Veitch deputy district attorney at Los Angeles.

Taft's Traits.

President William Howard Taft laid bare his fine traits of character last Saturday night when he sang his own "swan song" in a speech as a guest of the Loftus club in New York City. He showed that he held no animosity against any man and revealed that his chief regret was that he had not accomplished more

for the good of the United States.

President Taft has probably been the most maligned man who ever sat in the white house, yet on his out-going he gives the United States no vitriolic outbursts of temper such as come from men who have not been even so unjustly criticized or so unfairly treated.

He did not accuse his false critics

he did not attack those who had assailed him personally and his administration because of acts of the administration, done with a view to bring about the ends of justice. He revealed that he held malice against no man, even though those of us who like to see fair play and the square deal so much prattled about know that he has been very badly misused by his former friends and political associates.

In his serious moments the president advocated the admission to the halls of congress of members of the president's cabinet; declared that a six-year term in the presidency was enough for any man; advocated strongly the placing in the civil service of practically every officer in the government service and hinted broadly that congress should provide for former presidents so that they need not lower the dignity of the position they have held when they enter into private life.

to gay and from the philosophy, which he said four years in the white house had taught him, to a discussion of problems which face the nation. He laughed at the outcome of the election, smiled when he spoke of some of the plans of President-elect Wilson and touched with gentle sarcasm William J. Bryan.

His chief regret, the president said, was that he had been unable to influence the United States Senate to ratify the arbitration treaties with France and Great Britain. In spite of that fact he asked his audience to believe that he would leave office with the deepest gratitude to the American people for the honor they had given him and with the belief that enough progress had been accomplished in his administration to warrant him a feeling that he had done real good for his country.

"One of the results of my observation in the presidency is that the position is not a place to be enjoyed

by a sensitive man" said President Taft.

"The experience in the presidency toughens the hide of the occupant so as to enable him to resist the stings of criticism directed against him from the time he takes office until he lays it down.

"I don't know that criticism has been any greater in this administration than in a previous administration. All I know is that it was my first experience and that it seemed to me as if I had been more greatly tried than most Presidents by such methods.

"The result in some respects is unfortunate in that after one or two efforts to meet unfounded accusations, despair in the matter leads to indifference and perhaps to an indifference toward both just and unjust criticism.

"This condition helps the comfort of the patient, but I doubt if it makes him a better president.

"I think the period for successful

muckraking is gradually drawing to a close. I hope so. We must consider that the abolition of muckraking literature is only one of the temporary excuses of the time which is curing itself by tiring those whose patronage formed the motive for its beginning and rise."

New Yorkers have just voted $50,000,000 more for road improvement. The Empire State has made a heavy investment in permanent highways and cheerfully provides more. All concerned see that it pays.

Which Shall It Be?

Do you intend to continue laboring, burning valuable fuel and destroying high priced food with that old worn out cook stove?

You know that old stove eats up a lot of fuel each year.

You know you have trouble in getting it to bake just right, in fact, spoil a batch of bread every once in a while—you know it costs considerable for yearly repairs.

Stop and think and figure.

Wouldn't it pay you to buy a good range—a range with a reputation—

The Great Majestic and Malleable Iron Range

You make no mistake in buying the GREAT MAJESTIC—it's the range with THE REPUTATION—ask your neighbors. Then, too, it's made just right and of the right kind of material—MALLEABLE and CHARCOAL IRON—riveted together practically air tight—lined with pure asbestos board—parts being malleable can't break—has a moveable reservoir and an oven that don't warp—that's why the MAJESTIC uses so little fuel, bakes just right every day in the year (browns bread just right without turning,) heats 15 gallons of water while breakfast is cooking—properly handled lasts a lifetime, costs practically nothing for repairs.

Don't buy the range you expect to last a lifetime "unsight unseen," you'll be sure to be disappointed. Come to our store during demonstration week, see the GREAT MAJESTIC—have its many exclusive features explained—find out why the MAJESTIC is 300% stronger than other ranges where most ranges are weakest.

PRIMARY LAW TO MAKE BIG CHANGE

Proposed Legislation is Prepared by a Special Commission Appointed at Indianapolis.

CLEAR OUT OF ALL POLITICS

Legislature Will be Asked to Pass it Takes Politics Out of City Elections.

Rush county politicians of all parties will be interested in the provisions of a primary election bill which an advisory commission at Indianapolis has just finished drafting and which will be offered for passage at the forthcoming session of the legislature.

If this bill should become a law, municipal elections would be taken out of partisan politics, candidates for all elective offices would be nominated and members of political committees, presidential electors and delegates to national conventions chosen at primary elections.

The proposed law would include the nomination of candidates for United States senator by direct primary and an expression of a preference for president and vice president.

In city elections it is proposed that the names of political parties shall not enter into the nomination and election of candidates. Persons seeking nominations would get on the ballot by petitions signed by not less than 2 per cent. of the electors in not less than one-sixth of the election precincts of the city. Any candidate receiving a majority of all votes cast would be declared elected. If no candidate received a majority of all votes cast, the two receiving the highest number of votes would be candidates at the regular fall election.

For all offices other than municipal, names may be placed on the primary ballot either by party committees or by petition, or both. The party committees are authorized, under the proposed bill, to name tickets not later than the eighth, Tuesday preceding the primary election, such selection to be made at a public meeting of the committee.

At any time not later than four weeks preceding the primary election, any person may have his name placed on the primary ballot by petition.

In the case of candidates for United States senator or state office the petition must be signed by at least 1 per cent. of the voters of six counties. For other offices the petition must be signed by a specified per cent. of the voters of the district in which the person is seeking the nomination. Candidates for the judgeship of any court are to be placed on a separate non-partisan ballot, the candidates for nomination to be selected by petition only.

Election officials are to be named by the judge of the circuit court, to serve for a term of two years, not more than two representatives of the same political party to be on any one election board. The judge is to post on the door of the courthouse ten days before the election boards are to be appointed, the names of the persons he proposes to appoint. Election officers thus selected would serve as registration, primary election and general election officials.

It is proposed that the primary election shall be held concurrently with the first registration period, which is in May, or, if any change should be made in the registration law, not later than the second Tuesday in May. At the same time, the members of the party committees, from precinct to state would be elected.

A voter at a primary election would not be required to state his politics. He would be handed the ballots of all parties participating and would select the one he desired to use and return the others unused. The proposed bill is taken largely from the New York primary election bill as it was before the New York legislature eliminated most of the safeguards.

The proposed bill provides heavy penalties for violation. It is proposed that candidates nominated for the various state offices and for the legislature shall meet at the state capitol at noon on the fourth Tuesday of September after the primary election to formulate the state platforms of their parties, which are to be made public not later than 6 p. m. of the following day.

THE ROOT OF EVIL

BY THOMAS DIXON

Copyright, 1911, by Thomas Dixon

A feeble cheer rose from the bundled or more who knew the doctor personally. It was the only response the sullen crowd gave to his burst of feeling. They were not in sympathy with his optimism. The anguish of the present moment of bread hunger
and cold was too keen.

When the doctor sat down Stuart saw Harriet suddenly lean over, draw his big shaggy head down and kiss
him. He hadn't recognized her before.

The next speaker made his attack on the corruption and graft of our system
of government with brutal frankness.
He assailed the foundations of the republic, and at last the principles which underlie civilized society itself. Undoubtedly he was a madman, driven insane by the fierce struggle for bread,
but none the less a dangerous maniac.

With scathing, bitter wit he flayed
the corruption of our system of democracy.
The speaker closed his tirade with a fierce personal attack on the man who had made five millions in a corner on bread and flaunted his ill gotten gains in the face of starving men and women.

Nan's face flashed with sudden rage.
"Take me to my car, Jim. I've an idea—I'm going to execute it at once."

"Wouldn't you like to meet the doctor and his daughter before you go?"
"Thanks. Hardly. You know he is on Mr. Bivens' black list."

"I'd forgotten that," he answered
reproachfully. "I'd like awfully for you rudely past and sprang into his an-tomobile. He waved his hand to his chauffeur. His gesture was mistaken by a pair of keen, restless eyes for a command to his reserves to disperse

the crowd.

A pale, shabby young fellow leaped past the line of police into the open space and rushed straight for the reserves. His long, thin arm was lifted high in the air clutching a black thing with a lighted fuse sparkling from its crest.

A murmur rippled through the crowd,
the police stood still and stared, and the next moment the bomb exploded in the boy's hand, and his body lay on the stones a mangled heap of torn flesh and blood soaked rags.

The police charged the crowd and clubbed them without mercy. The people fled in confusion in every direction, and in five minutes the square
was cleared.

Stuart had hurried Nan to her car and rushed back to the scene of the tragedy. He readily passed the lines of the police, who recognized him as the district attorney.

The doctor reached the spot and Harriet was holding the dying boy's head in her lap.

Stuart bent over her curiously and slowly asked:

"You were not afraid to rush up here
with your father and take that poor
mangled thing in your arms?"

"Of course not," she replied simply.
"Papa says he's dying—nothing can be done for him. They're sent for an ambulance."

The doctor pressed Stuart's arm
and spoke in low tones:
"I've made some big mistakes in my life, boy. I'm just beginning to see them. I've read a new message in the flutter of this poor fellow's pulse. I'll not be slow to heed it."

When the doctor reached home the face of the dying boy haunted him. He began to fear his struggle with Bivens in his long drawn and fiercely contested lawsuit was an act of the same essential quality of blind physical violence. He began to see that the real motive back of his struggle was hatred
of the man—this little counter jumper who had destroyed his business. It was the irony of such a fate that sank his poisoned dagger into his heart. He faced the fact at last without flinching.

He rose and paced the floor of his library for a half hour with measured tread. He stopped suddenly and climbed his big fists instinctively.

"I do hate him—with undying,
everlasting hatred, and I pray God
to give me greater strength to hate him more!"

He rose with sudden determination.
He would not surrender. He would fight it out with this little swarthy scoundrel, win or lose. His house was mortgaged; the last dollar of his savings he had spent in helping others,
and the money set aside to finish Harriet's course in music had been lost in the panic. He would fight it out somehow and win. But the one thing that must not fail was the perfection of his girl's voice. The court of appeals would certainly render its decision before her next term's work would begin. She could rest during the summer. It would do her good.

If he could be firm with his tenants
and collect his room rents promptly from every one, the income from his house was still sufficient to pay the interest on the mortgage and give him
a little to eat. It would be enough.
Food for the soul was more important. He resolved to ask Stuart to collect his rents.

He looked up and Harriet stood at his side.

"What have you been crying about?"
he asked anxiously.

"Oh, nothing much," was the low answer. "I really don't know—perhaps the thing that makes the birds out there in the square chirp while the snow is still on the ground, the feeling that spring is coming."

"You're keeping something from me, dearest," he whispered, slipping his arm about her waist. "Tell me."
"You really believe in my voice, don't you?" she asked slowly.

"Believe in it? Do I believe in God?"

"Could I go abroad right away and finish my work there?"

She asked the question with such painful intensity, the father looked up with a start.

"Why do you wish to go now, child?"
he asked.

"I've a confession to make, papa,
dear. I'm in love, desperately and hopelessly."

A sob caught her voice, and the

father's arms drew her to his heart and held her.

"But why hopelessly, my baby?" he asked. "Your hair is beaten gold, your eyes are deep and true, your slender little form has all the symmetry and beauty of a sylph. You are young, radiant, glorious, and your voice the angels would envy."

"But the man I love doesn't realize all that yet, papa, dear. He is bound by the memories of the past to a woman
he once loved, a woman who is evil at heart, and though she betrayed
him for the lust of money is determined to hold him still her slave. But she shall not. I'll fight for him! And you'll help me, papa, won't you?"

The father drew her close.

"Won't I—just wait and see! But you haven't told me his name? I've been very blind, I fear."

"You've never guessed?"

She lifted her face to his in surprise.

"No."

"Jim."

"Our Jim Stuart?"

She nodded. Her voice wouldn't work.

"Oh, I see, I see!" the father mused.
"The first love of a child's heart grown slowly into the great passion of life."

Again the little head nodded.

"You understand now why I wish to get away, to finish my work abroad.
I'll be nearer to him with the ocean between us. He'll miss me then. I feel it, know it. When I return he will be proud of my voice. I shall go mad
if I stay here and see him dangling at that woman's heels. I shall sing when he hears me as I never sang before,
and I shall say to him then all the unspoken things I dare not put in speech."

The father kissed the trembling lips
and answered firmly:
"I'll raise the money for you right
away."

And then for half an hour she lay in his arms while he whispered beautiful thoughts of her future. When he sent her to bed he had kissed the last tear
away.

"And now I've got to surrender," he said to himself.

To be continued.

BULGARS HELD IN FIRM CHECK

Turks Still Defend Approach to Constantinople.

THE CAPITAL CITY GUARDED

Detachments From Foreign Ships in Port of Beleaguered Seat of Ottoman Empire Patrol the Streets of Apparently Doomed City, Insuring by Their Presence Considerate Treatment of Foreigners Located There.

Belgrade, Nov. 19.—The Politika says the Montenegrins have captured the city of Scutari, in Albania. The report cannot be confirmed.

Constantinople, Nov. 19.—It is stated that the sultan has personally appealed to the sovereigns of the great powers to intervene and stop the war.
It also is stated on the highest official authority that an armistice between the Montenegrins and the Turks is practically certain and will perhaps be effected before many hours have elapsed.

Constantinople, Nov. 19.—At the Tchataldja forts the brunt of the fighting has swung to the center of the lines.
There the division under Mahmoud Mukhtar made a spirited frontal attack upon the Bulgars and, according to the official Turkish reports, broke up their formation, seized a number of guns and drove the Bulgars back.
The Ottoman reports admit that the Turkish losses were heavy as they had to advance through a hail of artillery fire.

The Bulgarians seem to be confining themselves to a bombardment of the lines. A number of gunless Anatolians have been sent back to Constantinople from the lines, as they were merely encumbering the army.

While the capital awaits the details of the fighting sailors from the foreign ships are patrolling the streets of the city. They are the object of much interest to the natives who crowd about them as they make camp
in front of the foreign embassies at Pera.

FALL OF MONASTIR

Important Turkish Town Now in the Hands of the Allies.

London, Nov. 19.—The Turkish town
of Monastir has fallen to the Servians and Greeks. Fifty thousand Turks and three generals have laid down
their arms.

The main body of the western Turkish army fought desperately to hold the important town, but the fall of Monastir was assured when a Greek army cut the communications with Orchida to the north where the Turks were planning to retreat in case of defeat.

The struggle was most bloody. One report has it that the Serbs alone lost 2,500 during the first day's battle. With the capture of Monastir the work of the Serbo-Greek army in the west is practically done. The Turks in Mon-astir were discouraged by their defeats, disorganized and lacked provisions.

The Greeks sent back word to Athens that at Salonica which they captured on the way to Monastir they captured $30,000,000 from the Turks
in that city.

Mexican Rebels Drove Federal Troops
Across Line Into United States.

Washington, Nov. 19.—Mexican federal troops have been driven across the border into the United States near Palomas, Mexico, following their defeat by rebels, according to state department advices. Another federal force has been defeated at the Nosales ranch by a rebel band of eighty
men. The federals who were not killed or captured, fled while rebels took possession of the ranch and all its property.

Aliens Facing Death Chair.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 19.—The Virginia supreme court of appeals has refused writs of error in the cases of Floyd and Claude Allen, father and son under death sentence for the murder of the officers of the Carroll county court. Only the governor now can save the condemned men. The Allens are to die in the electric chair Friday morning.

WIDESPREAD FRAUD ALLEGED

Postal Authorities Say the American
Redemption Company, a Rochester Concern With Branches in Many Cities, Has Been Using the Mails to Carry on an Alleged Fraudulent Game, Cleaning Up Big Sum.

New York, Nov. 19.—Closing of the net which the government spread over a year ago to catch the agents and principals of the American Redemption company, a Rochester concern, which is accused of using the mails in a scheme to defraud, was followed by arrests made in seven cities by postoffice authorities. Estimates of the amount secured by the scheme range between $500,000 and $1,500,000.

Prisoners were taken on warrants issued in New York, Cincinnati, Rochester, Cleveland, Newark, Boston and Chicago. The raids on the offices of the so-called brokers took place at the same time so that no word of the impending danger could be flashed from one office to the others.

The men under arrest and those sought by the government are accused of defrauding promoters and infant stock companies through fees received on promise of guaranteeing securities and securing their sale. The postoffice people say that fees were also secured for "investigations" of property and that some excuse was always found by the men under arrest
for failing to render the promised services. The ring is said by the postal authorities to have had connections in Canada and England and to have made particular use of a London branch in carrying out its scheme. Inspectors spent some time investigating the London end of the business before concluding the arrangements for making arrests in this country.

In New York, Mason G. Worth, who is accused of having had part in the alleged scheme to defraud, was arrested in his office. Worth said he was a broker. According to the complaint drawn up by Assistant United States Attorney Rosa, Worth was the agent of the American Redemption company. The postal authorities say that the usual plan proposed was that the stock of the company to which the agent of the American Redemption company wrote should be marketed
providing that first the issue was guaranteed by the American Redemption company. The guarantee having been secured, it was often promised that the International Bankers' Alliance of England would take over the proposition. In return for its trouble the American Redemption company, say
the postal authorities, charged a brokerage fee of 1 per cent on the face value of the securities and sometimes filed a bill for the cost of the investigation.

Worth was arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields, who held him in $5,000 bail. Bail was not secured and Worth was locked up in the Tombs.

One of the inspectors discussing the general operations of the redemption company, said customers, after paying the 1 per cent commission on their stock, were informed that the International Bankers' Alliance of England would not act until an agent had investigated. They were further informed that they would have to pay for the investigation. Usually negotiations stopped right there.

WILSON CAN'T KEEP OUT OF SPOT LIGHT

Bermudans Not Inclined to Let Him Rest.

Hamilton, Bermuda, Nov. 12.—The very first thing that happened to President-Elect Wilson, who is seeking a rest, when he and his family stepped off the steamship Bermudian, was an address of welcome.

On the dock to meet the Wilson party was Mayor Wainwright, who bore a copy of an illuminated address of welcome prepared by the corporation of the city of Hamilton and told Mr. Wilson how proud Bermuda was to welcome him. There was a big crowd on the dock, and they cheered lustily as Mr. Wilson said that he hoped nothing would disturb the cordiality between Bermuda and the United States while he was president.

Then Mr. Wilson sent Lieutenant Lawrence, his aide-de-camp, to thank the chamber of commerce for their welcome, and drove to a hotel through streets gay with bunting flung out from all the houses in his honor. It was a triumphant procession for the party, for they were cheered all along the way.

As soon as he got to the hotel the president-elect found all sorts of proposals awaiting him from the Bermudians, who want to be sure that he has a good time on the island.

When he could get away Mr. Wilson headed his party for their cottage in Glen Cove, at Paget, and there they soon were busied getting settled. Mr. Wilson rowed over to Hamilton to buy a bed. He still refuses to have anything to say about politics.

THEY FEEL FOR HER

Romans Express Sympathy For American Signora's Predicament.

Rome, Nov. 19.—The Moschini scandal arising out of the arrest of Signora Moschini, formerly Lulu Davis of Austin, Tex., wife of a wealthy deputy, while in the company of a naval lieutenant a few days ago, is extensively commented on in the press. Most of the comment is very favorable to the American girl, who has suffered so much since her husband attempted to divorce her.

Deputy Moschini's cowardly prosecution of his wife is deplored. Lieutenant Bellegard, who is an aide-de-camp to Admiral Nicastro, and who was arrested with Signora Moschini, was released on bail. Signora Moschini is still in jail, despite the efforts of her counsel. She will probably, however, be released provisionally.

Looking For an Early Verdict.

New York, Nov. 19.—It was the opinion of the defense and prosecution and of spectators who have followed the testimony in the trial of Gyp The Blood, Lefty Louie, Whitey Lewis and Dago Frank for the killing of Herman Rosenthal that when the case goes to the jury this afternoon following Justice Goff's charge, the gunmen will not have to remain awake very late tonight to learn the verdict.

Overpowered Their Keeper.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 19.—Five inmates of the county jail escaped after an attack on Fred Mullen, the rock pile superintendent. Mullen was attacked by John Johnson with one of the hammers used in breaking rock, while his brother, Harry Johnson, took the keys to the gates. All the men who escaped were in jail for short terms on minor charges.

Helen Taft Goes to Panama.

New York, Nov. 19.—Miss Helen Taft, the president's daughter, left recently with Secretary of War and Mrs. Stimson for Panama.

The Doctrine of Good Shoes May Be Profitably Preached Only By a Good Shoe Man

Frankly, we'd hate to be in the "near shoe" business! We'd hate to carry lines of shoes that sell only because the price is small. Somehow, we feel that it would be about as creditable to circulate bad money as to sell bad shoes. Perhaps the selling of poor shoes will stop, sometime. It ought to stop.

THE SOLDIERS HAD TO BOMBARD MONASTERY

Notorious Bandit Caused No End of Trouble.

Czestochowa, Russian Poland, Nov. 19.—Before he was finally killed, the notorious bandit Koslowski held up a regiment of infantry, two squadrons of cavalry and a battery of artillery and terrorized hundreds of monks here. Policemen attempted to arrest Koslowski in the street. The latter shot the policemen and also a passer-by who attempted to assist the officers, and then fled to the celebrated Paulist monastery at Jasna Gora and hid with a companion in the bastion. From this place the men threw two bombs and fired volleys at the approaching police, who soon found the work too hot and sent for troops. A regiment of infantry, two squadrons of cavalry and a battery of quick-firing guns soon surrounded the monastery and began an assault, to which the bandits replied vigorously.

The fight was kept up all night. Early in the morning the soldiers made a breach in the bastion wall by means of a bomb and went inside. Koslowski was found dead, having been riddled with bullets, but the other bandit succeeded in making his escape.

Meanwhile the monks and a host of pilgrims were huddled panic-stricken in the church, which they were not permitted to leave. It is believed that the other bandit is hidden somewhere about the vast monastery and searching parties are looking for him.

Outlining a Program.

WILL MAKE GOOD XMAS PRESENTS

Public Library Commission Exhibits Here Books Suitable For Children at Yuletide Gifts.

People May View Them to Get Ideas on Suitable Presents For Young Folks.

There will be on exhibition at the Rushville Public Library for the next five days one hundred books selected by the Public Library Commission of Indiana to form a collection suitable for gifts to children. This collection is sent to the public libraries of the State for exhibition purposes and an opportunity is thus afforded parents and friends who desire to give the best books, to see and examine some of the volumes, which librarians have found are favorites with boys and girls, and which are worthy of a place on the shelves of a child's own library.

In the collection there has been an attempt to meet the needs of children of all ages. The books range in scope from the picture books, rhymes and jingles for the baby up to Scott, Dickens and Stevenson for high school boy and girl. Myths, legends, fairy tales, poetry, biography, history, travel, Bible stories, athletic stories, wholesome tales of adventure, stories of school and home life have been included.

In meeting the needs of the children, the pocket-book has also been kept in mind. The books vary in price from 25 cents to $2.25.

Some one has said that "the best literature is none too good for children. Nowadays the idea is pretty well disseminated that the choicest from all the garnered riches of the great world of literature should be given to them, that they may early be possessed of thoughts and feelings that are true, large, sweet and beautiful." When the far-reaching influence of a book is considered, and when that influence is intensified by ownership, what better gift can be presented to a child? What could be selected with more care?

The annual output of juvenile books is great in numbers. In the Christmas shops the bargain tables are piled high with a bewildering display of mediocre books, few of which are worthy of being owned. With care in selection, the best literature can be bought for the same money. Montrose J. Moses spoke most truly when he said, "Imperative it is in all cases that book buying should not be a lottery, but most persistently apparent does it become that a child's own individual book upon the Christmas tree or for a birthday should not represent a grown-up's afterthought." The child's own desire and likings should be kept in mind and satisfied with the best.

THANK OFFERING.

'DRUMMER EVANGELIST' IS UNDER HOT FIRE

obtain a divorce from the Ohio woman. Shortly after the decree was granted he was married to Miss Hubbard. The girl would have graduated from the Lynn High School in five days had she not married.

The feeling of Lynn residents against the "minister" was intense, and when he returned to that town with his bride trouble began. An attempt was made to place a coat of tar and feathers over his body. He was rescued from the angry mob by officers.

Sentiment in Winchester inflamed anew against him, and he was forced to leave the city, fearing trouble. August 31 last he was arrested on a warrant from Cincinnati charging him with failing to provide for his children.

"I mean to stand by the old ship till she sinks. They may lock me up, but they can't get the salvation out of my heart. Those who have been investigating this thing are jealous, that's all. It's not the world that is persecuting me, it is the church. Yes, I married four times, and I am not ashamed of it, either. We all make mistakes, and perhaps it was one of my mistakes to marry this young girl who was 28 years younger than I. But I did it for love of home and companionship."

This statement was made in Cincinnati last night by "Rev." S. J. Winchester. He emphasized that he was simply a "hired hand" in the employ of the society, and that he therefore was unable to say what was done with the money collected by it. He said the work done by the organization so far consisted in "building up a society for the protection of girls." He declared the management of the society's affairs was in the hands of his son "Colonel" Winchester, but he was unable to say where the latter is at present. "Rev." Winchester said he had just returned from a trip throughout the South. He was called to Cincinnati, he said, on the instigation of officials, to come to the aid of his wife, who is in a serious condition at the City Hospital in Cincinnati. He was not permitted to see the woman last night.
